

Burndown Chart

From this sprint, we started many of the tasks from the 9th. With the google authentication being completed on the 13th, many other stories were finished in the next 3 days within the deadlines from the Trello. The planned velocity in this sprint is more linear so an equal number of tasks are to be completed each day. This differs from the previous sprint velocity as many of the tasks were completed on the last 2 days. From this sprint, there has been some improvement to try and complete tasks evenly throughout the days in the sprint, but there are still many stories being completed in the last few days of the sprint. This is due to encountering issues with the implementation that took longer to resolve than anticipated in order to complete the stories.